FOSTER STAYS WHILE BORDEN REMAINS.

Self-proclaimed Conservatives who had hoped that Mr. Borden's public avoidance of Hon. George F. Foster meant that the party was to be relieved of this gentleman and his record have been speedily undeceived by no less authority than the leader himself. Mr. Foster was not among those present at Mr. Borden's Toronto meeting. His absence was explained by another meeting having been arranged for him somewhere else. Last, however, anyone who had any doubts had grown up between them. Mr. Borden hastened to reassure his hearers that Mr. Foster was an honorable man, attacked the British Empire Commission vigorously, but wound up somewhat unfortunately by congratulating himself that the Commission had not found him guilty of any of the "land deals" which had put Mr. Foster so much in need of defence.

This whitewashing of Mr. Foster was purely gratuitous. Mr. Borden had already said as much for his lieutenant as friendship required, and the circumstances suggested, and a great deal more than the welfare of the party he leads warranted him in doing. He had defended, or tried to defend, Mr. Foster in the House and out of it, had jockeyed for position, and any followers into having to either defend him or refuse to do so, had called on the party at large to fall in or be spattered reputation. All of which was very loyal to Mr. Foster, but very foolish for the party which Mr. Borden had gone already further than prudence—told him to go, and was entirely under no compulsion to go farther.

Yet we are told by the admiring Mail and Empire that "Hon. George F. Foster, who was addressing a meeting elsewhere, was the only abashed, and thereby hung the most dramatic incident of the evening," though absent, Mr. Foster was certainly not forgotten. Mr. Borden took up his position in his speech against the Globe's underhand and "scurrilous attack on the member for North Toronto, and swept away any shred of doubt which might have been cast on the value placed by the "Conservative leader on the services of his much-proved and faithful lieutenant."

We can readily believe that though absent, Mr. Foster was "not forgotten." There is no immediate danger of Mr. Foster being forgotten by the party which has had to become responsible for him. He is the unbroken figure at every rally, the uninvited guest on every platform, Mr. Borden may leave him behind to look after him elsewhere to talk, but all the same the men who listen to the voice of Borden are gazing at Foster, and Foster, with his methods, his record and his associates, is the politician about Mr. Borden's neck, and there is no danger of either gentleman or his auditors forgetting the fact.

And no doubt the alliance to the gentleman was a "dramatic incident." His whole connection with the politician has been dramatic, except when it developed into tragedy or descended into comedy. The spectacle of the leader witnessing the "land deals" of Mr. Foster and the value he placed on his "faithful" services showed up all three. To the men who would support and shout for anyone who pronounced the shibboleth and wore the tag it may have been dramatic to those who knew the "faithful" services by which Mr. Foster has for months been trying to oust Mr. Borden from the leadership of the party was comedy, while in the outcome and its consequences the scene promises to be pitifully productive of tragedy for the gentleman who engaged in it.

For Mr. Foster's sake this voluntary "lightning" might have been the most unexplicated, Mr. Borden was contemptuously gratified that the Commission had not found him mixed up in any of the "land deals" which it would have been improper for him to be in the game where the politician has his lieutenant. Mr. Borden considered it incompatible with his public position—and this he clearly wanted his hearers to infer—that he should go through a trial of his own reputation and fate on the earnings of the money of widows and orphans, it surely is quite as incompatible for him to defend officially the lieutenant who did so. In putting himself on the back Mr. Borden administered a back-handed slap to Mr. Foster, who, by his sympathy and not otherwise, intentionally, but none the less really and severely. It could not have been otherwise. Mr. Foster's record, as a leader of political deterioration when the best that can be said of him is to say nothing about him. To defend him is only to call attention to his record, and to call attention to him is to condemn him.

This newly-attempted defence is not to the party that Mr. Borden keeps Mr. Foster whether they wish to or not. This charge Mr. Borden made two years ago. He reaffirms it now after two years of consideration and experience. It may stand therefore as his final word. Mr. Foster goes as he goes, but Mr. Foster's designs, Mr. Foster and his associates are now dominant in the office, and the rank and file may make the best of any other election they please.

This absolute decoupling of Conservatives from responsibility to support Mr. Borden and his candidates, however strongly they may hold their party doctrine, as to their election, trade policy, railway policy, and all the other economic policies, they can only be justified by the fact that they have declared policy of the party as to the men who have wrecked it and whose presence paralyzes all hopes of the early recovery. Conservatives put the honor and permanent well-being of the party higher than their own. They have no intention of violence to the obligation of party loyalty by administering to that chief on October 20 a rebuke which he has made war against and which he dare not ignore.

There is a greater party interested in Mr. Borden's pronouncement—the public. To them he says in effect that if he should succeed at the coming election he may either elect his Minister of Finance would be the man who pursued the money of widows and orphans, and who would be the man who pursued the money of widows and orphans, and who would be the man who pursued the money of widows and orphans.

Mr. R. L. Borden's probably wondering by this time who is making that Ontario tour anyway. The whereabouts of the honorable gentleman is frequently matter for curiosity. Next to his "assistants." They took up duty in some role or other of the "land deals" which he was a witness at. A. Macdonald, since his bludge to the hit in J. S. William. Mr. William promptly advises Mr. Borden that the blow was unwarranted—that neither the intent of the real victim, nor anyone else deserved it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it.

To Mr. William is the sympathy that goes to a man wounded in the house of his friends, though he has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it.

Meantime Mr. Borden "also speaks" in some place or other "on the subject of the land deals." He is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it.

Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it. Mr. Borden has been making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it, and he is making a big thing out of it.

put up with the consequences. We may drop a tear for the troubles of a leader who cannot lead the unfeeling, but we cannot sympathize with the fact that Mr. Borden stands responsible for Mr. Borden's slanders of Mr. William, and we cannot sympathize with the fact that Mr. Borden stands responsible for Mr. Borden's slanders of Mr. William, and we cannot sympathize with the fact that Mr. Borden stands responsible for Mr. Borden's slanders of Mr. William.

THE COMING MINISTER 'S LABOR.

W. J. Mackenzie King, formerly Minister of Labor, is Liberal candidate in North Waterloo. Mr. King is a grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, one of the liberalists of Canada. If the following nomination address speaks his sentiments he is worthy his lineage and will worthy the office he selects.

"My acceptance of the Liberal nomination in North Waterloo is a step which has not been taken lightly and earnest consideration. My work of the past eight years, during which I have been Minister of Labor, has grown to be one of the most important in my life. I have been able to share near to my heart to be quickly or lightly passed. Indeed, the experience has been one of the most interesting of my life. WHAT BORDEN PROMISES.

To British Columbia in the Matter of a Subsidy.

Vancouver, B.C., October 1.—In speech tonight, Hon. G. H. Gowan, Liberal candidate, who has just returned from a conference with the Department of Labor, declared that Mr. Borden had promised to give the people of British Columbia what they had been asking for—rights for British Columbia would be granted. Mr. Gowan was not alone in his opinion. He was joined by Mr. Gowan, who was not alone in his opinion. He was joined by Mr. Gowan, who was not alone in his opinion.

INCOMPETENT SWITCHMAN.

Is Responsible for Death of Engineer.

Toronto, October 1.—A switchman named McTaggart was on his first job at the C.P.R. station at Toronto. He left a switch open and the C.P.R. train to Hamilton crashed into it. The train was carrying a large number of passengers, and the crash was a terrible one. The switchman, McTaggart, was charged with the crime of negligence, and he was found guilty. He was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, and he was fined a large sum of money.

SPANISH KING IN PERIL.

Anarchists Sworn Death—Matters Made.

Buda Pest, Hungary, October 1.—There is much excitement here today over the death of the King of Spain. The King was shot by an anarchist, and he is now in a critical condition. The anarchists are claiming that they are justified in their actions, and they are demanding that the King be executed. The government is trying to keep the situation under control, but it is having a hard time.

IS GUILTY OF MURDER.

James O'Connell, Owen Sound, Sentenced to Hang December.

Owen Sound, Ontario, 1.—James O'Connell, a man who was charged with the murder of a woman, was sentenced to hang on December 1. The woman was found dead in a field, and O'Connell was the only person who was charged with the crime. He was found guilty, and he was sentenced to hang. He was found guilty, and he was sentenced to hang.

Bank Cashier Sued.

Grand Forks, N.D., October 1.—John Hemphill, cashier of the State Bank of Grand Forks, N.D., was sued by a woman who claimed that he had stolen her money. The woman was a widow, and she was claiming that Hemphill had stolen her money. Hemphill was charged with the crime of larceny, and he was found guilty. He was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, and he was fined a large sum of money.

Detroit, Oct. 1.—The Detroit and Mackinac Island railway is to operate a continuous train along their "J" route. The train will be a double motor, and it will be a double motor. The train will be a double motor, and it will be a double motor. The train will be a double motor, and it will be a double motor.

A. M. Aikens in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., October 1.—It is practically certain that A. M. Aikens will be nominated for the Liberal nomination in the riding of St. James. Aikens is a man who has been in the Liberal party for many years, and he is a man who has been in the Liberal party for many years.

LIKE AN ARE OF PEACE.

Will Suffragettes Disturbances of Last Session Appear Beside What Is to Come.

London, October 1.—"Was to the knife" is the promise held out by suffragettes to house-sitting women, who are expected to be the progress of the women's vote since parliament adjourned. HOCKEY.

HOCKEY TEAM IN SIGHT.

A hockey team that will be plenty fast enough to travel in the same company as the Wanderers of Montreal, and that will also be a reasonable good chance of bringing back the Stanley cup, emblematic of the hockey championship of Canada to Edmonton next winter, is now an established fact. The committee in charge of raising the necessary fund report having made satisfactory progress and the work of getting a team together is also progressing satisfactorily.

CAPTAINS WERE DEFEATED.

THE STORE THAT SELLS FOR LOWEST PRICES

Buying Clothing—and Horses

A man doesn't snap up a horse because he looks all right. As a usual thing, he leads the nag out where the light is good and strong and examines every hair of his hide. He squints under each hoof for the dark halting sign of distress and peeks down his throat for dark secrets. He wants to know the horse's pedigree—and he is mighty particular about getting a line on the man he's doing business with. When all this is made satisfactory and the price agreed upon, the buyer will further stipulate that should the horse turn out a rascal, be balky or not otherwise as represented, he can get his money back.

This may be too much caution but it is mighty good business. A man buys a horse for use and wants him as nearly perfect as possible. Compare this caution in buying horses with the indifference usually displayed in buying clothes.

Nine times out of ten, a man takes the first thing offered. He does not examine its composition. He knows nothing about the quality, and less about the pedigree of the garments—where and how they are made.

He knows little about the man who sells the clothes.

Is this logical?

A man is in the company of his horse for a few hours, perhaps, a day.

You are in your clothes all the time you are awake.

You manage the world's affairs

—transact business

—meet strangers

—welcome friends

—make love and are married

—go to church

—in fact, spend two-thirds of your life in YOUR CLOTHES.

"All of us can't be sailors." True enough—which is all the more reason why we should buy clothes that have a pedigree—a reputation, and a guarantee at the back of it.

"PROGRESS BRAND" Garments are pedigreed clothes. Their pedigree—the "Progress Brand" trademark shown below—is registered at Ottawa.

They will stand the most searching examination inside and out.

They are made of the most dependable materials in one of the best equipped tailories in Canada, and sold only by the most reliable dealers with an unqualified guarantee—"satisfaction or money refunded."

Does it pay, or is it good business, to be indifferent when buying your clothes?
